

Better Days

Waking up at 5am everyday for work. I know better days are coming.

Going to a job that don't love me. Better days are coming.

Listening to a negative person in our daily meeting, echos the way others see their own truth. Better days are coming.

Listening to your coworkers lie to a client, when you know the truth. Better days are coming.

The truth will override a lot of things, but a lie will always be a lie. Better days are coming.

Time for lunch, but I only have a dollar. Better days are coming.

Back in my office, listening to coworkers venting about other people's business, who shot John and about last night. Better days are coming.

As I look at the clock and the time is at a standstill, 3pm. Wow, better days are coming.

Sitting at my desk with my last customer for today. The customer is asking for my phone number instead of the problem at hand. I'm thinking, leave me alone please! Better days are coming.

5pm took a long time to get here. Time to clock out and leave for today. Better days are coming.

The rain started to fall as I was about to walk out the door. Now the rain turned into a thunderstorm, and I don't have a jacket nor umbrella for my head. Better days are coming.

Soaked and wet as I walked into my house. Better days are coming.

I took a shower and put on my PJs. As I retired to my recliner with my snack and drink. Cut on the tv, and I finally realized that today was Friday. I'm off for the weekend.

My better day has come.

